The Academy of Neurologic Communication Disorders and Sciences (ANCDS) invites you to participate through sponsorship of our 2025 Annual Educational and Scientific Meeting, entitled "Technological Advances and Ethical Decisions in Neurogenic Communication Disorders." The Annual Meeting will be held in Washington, D.C. on November 19, 2025. ANCDS has over 350 international and national members, who are researchers, faculty, clinicians, and students from a variety of fields dedicated to the clinical management of individuals with neurologic communication disorders such as aphasia, apraxia of speech, and dysarthria resulting from stroke, traumatic brain injury, or other diseases affecting neurological function. Non-members are also welcome to attend and include professionals from a variety of related healthcare and scientific fields.

Our mission is to offer an affordable educational and scientific meeting for anyone with a clinical and/or research interest in neurologic communication disorders. To accomplish this goal, we are seeking sponsorships from ANCDS members, interested individuals, and companies that provide goods and/or services associated with the clinical management of neurologic communication impairments.

We ask you to consider partnering with ANCDS to help provide relevant continuing education at a reasonable price and to advance the professional goals of our members. Your sponsorship is greatly appreciated and will be recognized as noted below. There are no limits to the number of sponsors at each level.

These are the exciting sponsorship opportunities available for the 2025 meeting:

Gold - $1,500

- Free attendance at the 2025 Educational and Scientific Meeting for two individuals.
- Advertising included in the ANCDS newsletter (highlighting the sponsors) - large ad for one year. Sponsors create their own ad and submit it to ANCDS for final approval.
- Large logo on the ANCDS website for one year.*
- Exposure to membership through the ANCDS Social Media pages (i.e., Facebook, Instagram, LinkedIn) once per month. This will be created and posted by ANCDS.
- Named lecture sponsorship with logo prominently displayed on all materials (program, signage, website).
- Verbal acknowledgement at the beginning of each speaker's session and written thank you on the digital program and on introductory and final slides of each speaker's session.
- ANCDS will send one pre-meeting and one post-meeting email blast about sponsors to its members. In the email blast, ANCDS will acknowledge that they are sending this information according to their advertising agreement with the sponsor(s).
- Brand logos will be displayed at select times throughout the meeting.
- Large logo on the attendee's annual meeting registration confirmation email and all other promotional eblasts.

ANCDS Student Fellowship Awards Sponsorship

The Student Fellowship Program began in 2011. Fellows include full-time speech-language pathology master's and doctoral students and full-time students specializing in clinical neurologically-based communication disorders and sciences (e.g., neuroscience, linguistics) enrolled in graduate-level courses. Each student fellow is matched with an ANCDS member who has similar research and clinical interests, acts as a mentor, and offers opportunities to discuss research and clinical issues. Additionally, the program provides student fellows with a one-year ANCDS membership and free registration for attendance at the Annual Educational and Scientific Meeting.

Student Fellowship Program - $200

Perks for companies that sponsor the Student Fellowship include:

- Written thank you with company logo contained in Student Fellowship packets provided to students.
- Opportunity to contribute branded items with the materials provided to student fellows.
